Taxation (Dual System)

Profile

The bachelor's programme Taxation (Dual System) links an academic degree in business administration with a vocational training as assistant tax adviser and professional practice. You can thus attain both qualifications in just nine semesters – much less time than it would usually take.

Our cooperation partners for this study programme are the Steuerberaterverband Düsseldorf (Düsseldorf association of tax advisers) and the vocational school Max-Weber-Berufskolleg Düsseldorf.

Vocational schooling at Max-Weber-Berufskolleg Düsseldorf to become an assistant tax adviser is integrated into the first five semesters. At the same time, you complete the practical vocational training in a tax consultancy. Passing the examination to become assistant tax adviser, you attain a professional qualification. The following four semesters combine professional practice in a tax consultancy with the HSD study programme.

During the vocational training, you acquire fundamental subject-specific expertise in the core areas of financial reporting, taxation and law. This reflects the typical link between theory and practice in a vocational training.

The core areas mentioned above are also key components of the academic studies in business administration. The study programme Taxation (Dual System) focuses on attaining a comprehensive understanding of business contexts under special consideration of tax aspects. The specialisation modules cover typical tax issues.

Practical projects and the bachelor's thesis integrate professional practice into the study programme.

As a graduate, you are able to recognise, analyse and structure business decisions relating to taxation on a scientific basis. You are specialised in developing practice-oriented alternative actions and in decision-making. For the duration of the programme, you gain practical experience by working three days a week in a tax consultancy. Theoretical courses take place at the vocational school and at the university of applied sciences on the two remaining weekdays.

Please note: The language of instruction is mainly German.

Career Options

The bachelor's programme Taxation (Dual System) qualifies you to work as a specialist in

- tax consultancies (including those which also train apprentices) or
- in corporate tax departments.

You also have the possibility to complete subsequent advanced training to become a fully qualified tax adviser.
